

IS YOUR PET A PORKER?

What's your pet's body condition score?

TOO SKINNY

1

- No belly fat
- Lost muscle mass
- Ribs visible from a distance

A score of 1 means your pet is extremely underweight, with pronounced ribs and shoulder blades. These pets have lost muscle mass and there is no observable body fat. Emaciated, bony and starved in appearance.

Your pet needs to see a licensed vet immediately to make a plan for safe weight gain to restore health & vitality

UNDERWEIGHT

2

- Ribs are easily felt
- Minimal body fat
- Small tucked stomach

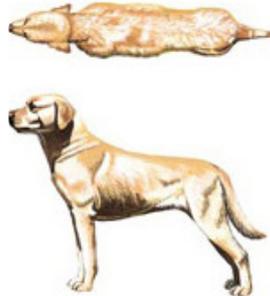

Your pet has very little fat and could use a few more calories to be at a healthier weight. Make a fist and run your finger over your knuckles. If your pet's ribs feel like this, then their score will be 2 and a little more balanced nutrition may be in order.

JUST RIGHT

3

- Slender tucked stomach
- Proportioned body shape
- Slight body fat on tail and ribs

Ribs and spine are easily felt but not necessarily seen. There is a waist when viewed from above and the abdomen is raised and not sagging when viewed from the side.

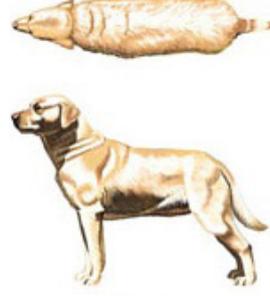

Place your palm face-down on a table with fingers spread and run your finger over your knuckles. Ribs that feel like this indicate a score of 3.

Normal, ideal and often muscular in appearance which means your pet is healthy and fit.

CHUBBY

4

- No belly fat
- Lost muscle mass
- Ribs visible from a distance

Your pet is the same width from head to toe, similar to a sausage knob which means your pet has a little more body fat than they should.

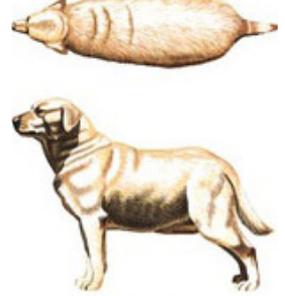

Ribs and spine are hard to feel or count underneath fat deposits. Waist is distended or often pear shaped when viewed from above. The abdomen sags when seen from the side. There are fat deposits typically on the hips, base of tail and chest.

Your pet would score a 4 indicating that they are overweight.

PORKER

5

- No belly fat
- Lost muscle mass
- Ribs visible from a distance

Your pet's neck is wider than its head and you have to press to feel ribs or spine

The abdomen sags prominently when seen from the side and there is no waist when viewed from above. There are large fat deposits on the hips, base of tail and chest.

Your pet would score a 5 indicating that they are obese.
